

SMOOTH AGENTS FOOL GARFIELD

Commissioner Barely Misses Being The Victim Of Standard Oil Agents.

HIS SUBORDINATES CHECK A FIASCO

Zealous But Too Confident Young Man Is Reminded Of His Experience With The Beef Trust
And Revises His Report.

Washington, Sept. 26.—The long-delayed report of Commissioner of Corporations Garfield concerning the operations of the Standard Oil company in Kansas, Oklahoma, California and other oil-producing sections of the southwest may be still further delayed. The commissioner is said to be dissatisfied with the comparative showing made by the facts and figures which he and his assistants collected during the junket that caused them to be absent from Washington for nearly six weeks.

Interested Informants.
The commissioner's suspicion is said to be directed against certain valuable and polite agents of the Standard Oil company who exhibited what is now regarded as ostentatious enthusiasm in giving them access to the secrets of the great oil octopus. The facts obtained in this way looked plausible to Mr. Garfield when they first came into his possession, but in the light of subsequent information obtained from other sources they possess the appearance of having been artistically doctored.

Mr. Garfield is very young, but, nevertheless, zealous, and sometimes too confident. The memory of his unfortunate experience with the beef trust is still too fresh in his mind to permit him to commit another such blunder in the case of the Standard Oil company. When the president directed him to visit the Kansas oil fields the people of Kansas protested vociferously, believing that Mr. Garfield would repeat the beef trust fiasco in their case.

Subordinates to Make Report.
He traveled through the oil fields of Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and California with the speed of an express train. How much he saw and heard will probably not be disclosed, because when his much-delayed report is finally made public it will represent not what Mr. Garfield believed he saw and heard but what older and abler and less gullible subordinates have found out since.

These subordinates naturally knew what their chief proposed to say in his report and they became alarmed. Like Mr. Garfield, they also remembered the beef trust investigation and its effect upon the public mind. They conducted numerous independent investigations with the result that the commissioner of corporations is likely to find it necessary to summon to Washington a few Standard Oil millionaires.

Misled by Standard Agents.
In view of the fact that congress was not in session and Mr. Garfield had no side issue to occupy his time at the capitol, which was the case when he had the beef trust report under consideration, it is regarded as extraordinary that he made such a seeming mess of the oil investigation. As a matter of fact, however, according to good authority, the facts gathered by Mr. Garfield from Standard Oil officials and the subsidiary companies of the oil trust represent only a small part of the misdeeds of the combine.

The oil trust's officials are said to have told the commissioner only what they chose to disclose and, of course, that was not unfavorable to themselves. They misled him and his friends have been busy trying to show him that he was the victim of a confidence game.

NATION MUST TAKE UP THE SWORD

Newspaper Publishes A Poem Calling On Patriots To Freedom.

(SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-MORAY.)

Budapest, Sept. 26.—Although as yet there has been no important development in the parliamentary crisis it hardly is possible to exaggerate the bitter feeling throughout Hungary. The popular attitude, indeed, scarcely is removed from open revolt, while the extreme section clamors for war.

Dr. Lengyel, one of the coalition leaders, writing to his newspaper, says the emperor-king has given the nation a blow in the face and the nation must reply with a sharpened sword.

He spoke in a similar vein at the unveiling Monday of the statue of Louis Kossuth at Mako. He said he recognized the hard times possibly in store for Hungary. Perhaps the gallows would be erected again, but despite all the country never would allow her liberty to be taken from her.

Says Illusion Is Over.
A radical newspaper, the "Fuegotten Magyarorszag," publishes a poem entitled "Franz Josef's Fist," which in most violent language declares that all illusions now are over and the Hungarian nation again must take the sword. If it does it will drive the enemy from the country.

This caused a great sensation. Even members of the opposition to the coalition leaders acting under more restraint than this, still do not hesitate to make known their determined attitude.

Francis Kossuth, when he returned from Vienna, made a speech and was cheered by thousands, who escorted the rebuffed leaders through the streets.

He said: "In Vienna they want to put a strait jacket on our national development. They want to rob us of the breath of patriotism, to tear the courage from our hearts, but they never will succeed until they have broken."

The crowd, applauding tremendously, tried to unharness the horses and drag the carriage in which the leaders were riding, but Kossuth prevented. The party drove to the Independent club through cheering masses. Later from the balcony of the clubhouse Kossuth made another speech, in which he said:

"We are not cast down. As your reception shows the national idea has struck deep into the heart of the nation and now it never will be uprooted. The Hungarian nation bravely will maintain its place."

"Everything done against us strengthens our longing for independence. The time is not far distant when all Hungary will form one party. We pray you bear patiently the blows aimed at the fatherland. We will remain here watching its destinies."

Enthusiastic plaudits followed this speech.

Regret King's Conduct.

"The executive committee of the coalition unanimously voted thanks to the leaders for their wise and patriotic action, and recorded its regret for the king's conduct and indignation at the action of his advisers."

In the debate following the presentation of the resolution embodying the foregoing many sharp words were used. It finally was resolved to issue a proclamation to the country justifying the coalition's attitude. It further decided to summon a general conference of all the coalition parties on Oct. 3 to consider the answer to be given to the king's demands. Members of the diet who wish to share in the defense of the coalition will be invited to attend.

CLOSE ARGUMENTS IN BIG TAX CASE

Attorneys May File Additional Briefs
In This Famous Litigation.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Sept. 26.—Judge S. D. Hastings of Green Bay today took under advisement the ad valorem railroad tax law case, and returned to his home in Green Bay. The attorneys completed their arguments, but were allowed by Judge Hastings ten days more time in which to file any additional briefs or citations of authorities that they may desire to have considered in the reaching of a decision. Judge Hastings will file his decision in the circuit court for Dane county. It is expected that the decision will come not long after the ten days allowed the attorneys for subsequent filings expires, for Judge Hastings said yesterday that he would at once go to work on the case, reviewing the briefs and examining the many authorities cited in the pleading and arguments. He has court in the Green Bay circuit next week. Whichever party to the litigation, the state or the North-Western Railroad company, secures the decision in the trial court, as soon as judgment is completed an appeal will be taken to the supreme court so that the most important questions involved may be more definitely and fully determined. It has been hinted that if the railroads are defeated in the circuit courts they will carry the case to the United States supreme court, or the allegation that the case involved federal questions.

CORN SEASON IS AT ITS HEIGHT

100 TO 130 WAGON LOADS RECEIVED AT CANNERY DAILY.

KRAUT CUTTING HAS BEGUN

New Machine Which Assists in Assorting Pickles Has Been Added To Equipment.

With the corn department running full blast and the kraut cutting room commencing operations, a force of between one hundred and fifty and two hundred hands is busy at the Hohenadel, Jr., canning factory in Spring Brook. The corn season commenced four weeks ago and will last some time, though the last corn will be received from the growers in about two weeks. At present, this product is arriving at the cannery in large amounts, between a hundred and a hundred and thirty wagon-loads, each weighing between one and a half and two and a half tons, coming each day.

Seventy-five Thousand Tons
Though the amount of corn that will be received before the season closes cannot be approximately figured, it is estimated that the seventy-five-thousand-ton mark will be reached. This is all grown on farms within a radius of seven miles around the city. The crop is of excellent quality and fairly heavy, though not record-breaking.

Are Cutting Kraut
The cutting of kraut was commenced last week but no cabbage has come in from the farmers near here, thus far and operations were suspended until today or tomorrow. The product that was sliced came from Onkaska, Wis., where the Hohenadel company has a large acreage contracted for. This is shipped by rail and cuts a considerable figure in the amount of canned kraut produced by the local concern. A large acreage will be harvested around here, but the production is not of great size, though a usual amount of kraut will probably be packed. Working in the kraut department will probably last into December.

Pickle-Sorting Machine
This year a new machine, which is of much benefit to the management, was added to the equipment of the plant. This is a pickle-sorter. Formerly the product was sized entirely by hand but now all the pickles are run through the machine before being hand-sorted. The machine's value is not in saving labor, for about the same number of sorters are needed as before, but in the fact that the pickles are graded more evenly. The workers last season and before were always compelled to sort into five or six grades, while now, the grades sorted by the machine only have to be re-sorted in two sizes. The work of sorting is done after the salting process. This has commenced and will probably last all winter.

Science in Selecting Proper Foods

People Are Hot, Uncomfortable Unhealthy, Because They Do Not Eat The Right Food.

Scientists have determined that the various food elements found in wheat are the identical elements which the tissues and cells, the bone and brain, the blood and muscle of the human body are composed of and with which they must be replenished if life and strength are to be maintained.

Every nutritive element, every one of those marvelous strength and tissue-building food qualities of the best white wheat grain is found in Malta-Vita. This famous food is the whole of the wheat, thoroughly steamed and baked in absolute purity and mixed with the finest malt extract that can be made.

A these days of adulterated foods and food products such a food as is known to be pure and wholesome is indeed welcome. We have heard of malt breakfast foods and cereal products, some broadly advertised as whole wheat products, others as cereals, every disease known to man. No diet they are all good and possessed of some merit, but most of them are manufactured with some foreign sweetening agent to make them palatable. Among all the breakfast and cereal foods offered the public today, we believe we are warranted in saying that Malta-Vita is the only food that is simply and wholly pure grain product and nothing else, except a little salt. Malta-Vita as it comes to you from the factory is all of the wheat, it has been thoroughly cleaned, steamed to it is barley malt made of selected barley, malt, acting upon the starch, turns it into maltose, a malt-sugar, pronounced by physicians and food experts the finest, purest, most healthful sweetening agent known. Then the grain of wheat is rolled out flat into a thin water flake and baked in the ovens. It comes to you fresh and pure and sweet—absolutely nothing but a grain product prepared in the cleanest and most wholesome way and turned into the most delicious whole wheat food that can be found. Malta-Vita is for sale by nearly all grocers. It costs but a few cents a package for the same big package for which you used to pay fifteen cents.

PRELIMINARY STEPS FOR VERY GOOD TEAM

Prospects At Madison Point To Revival of Interest In Football This Year.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis.—The preliminary training season of the University of Wisconsin football team at Marinette has put the candidates in good physical trim for the hard work that will be done out by Coach King and Holt between now and the Chicago game, October 21. The preliminary season has not served to equip the men with much variety of play, but with the men in line to stand hard, long practice scrimmages, team work will be developed. Vanderboom's injury is the most serious development of the season. He has not yet come to Madison from the hospital in Marinette, where he is suffering much pain. It is learned that not only was his cheek pushed in by the terrific jolt he received in the game with the Company I team at Marinette, but that two teeth were knocked out and he sustained a double or compound fracture of the jaw. The best that the Badger fans hope for is that he will be able to get into the Chicago game. A sensation was caused by the announcement that Coach Stagg had protested the playing of Bertke, guard, on the ground that he played on a medical college eleven before entering the university. It is announced here that "Bertke is all right." Donovan, the big guard of last year, persists in his refusal to play, declaring that it is football or study with him and that he is here to study.

Scrimmage work was resumed Monday, but was not hard, as only 20 players were out for practice. Friday at halfback is proving so strong that it is an assured fixture in the back field. Ex-Captain Bush appeared and played at end. Deering has been shifted from tackle to guard, being found too heavy and slow for a tackle. The coaches are worried over the failure of Nordenholt of Chicago to appear. (Remp is playing a surprisingly strong game at center and no sign of the expected disagreement has developed between him and King. The line-up Monday was: ends, Bush and Fischer; tackles, Deering, Brindley and Johnson; guards, Bertke, Bleyer and Deering; quarterback, Melzner and Cummings; halfbacks, Findlay, and Roseth; fullback, Clarke. It is said that if Nordenholt appears Clarke will be shifted to end. Cummings' play at quarter yesterday seemed better than that of Melzner, the favorite.

FARSON CLAIMS HE OWNS INTERURBAN

Chicago Banker Reported To Have Admitted The Ownership of The Line.

The following item appearing in the Chicago Tribune of Sunday gives some further light on the transfer of the Rockford, Beloit & Janesville line. "Farson, Leach & Co. have purchased from Hayden, Miller & Co. of Cleveland the Rockford, Beloit & Janesville Electric railway, running from the center of Rockford north through Beloit to Janesville, Wis. This company has a paid-up capital of $1,000,000 and has $250,000 bonds outstanding. The road for the last few years has earned more than double its interest charges. It is the intention to extend it north to Madison, Wis., and northwest to Milwaukee." That the Chicago banking company should come into possession of the line, after having reported its sale to Cleveland parties earlier in the week, gave rise to the suggestion that it might mean the consolidation of the Rockford & Interurban line with the Janesville and Beloit line, as the Chicago banking company is interested in the local lines considerably. Mr. Farson was called up by long distance telephone and the question was put to him, as the Rockford officers of the Rockford & Interurban line declined to say anything on the subject. In his talk Mr. Farson said in part: "The purchase by our company of the Beloit lines does not necessarily mean that we shall try and combine the lines. While we are holders of some of the stock and bonds of the Rockford & Interurban line we will not try to consolidate the line, though such a thing may be a possibility of the future. In the Beloit line stocks we saw a good investment and made the purchase, and possibly will be interested in the extension of the line to the capital city of Wisconsin."

"Is your company in any way interested in the Madison city line?" was asked. "No. The line belongs to an individual and none of the members of our company are interested. Should we build to Madison or extend the Beloit line to the Wisconsin capital, we should have to make a traffic arrangement with that company to get into the city, for the Madison company has a clause in its franchise which will practically shut out all companies getting in there only on traffic arrangements with it."

FASHION NOTES

PARIS FASHION NOTES.
Dame Fashion is rather independent in the matter of hats this season; her decree is that the hat in which you look the best is the most modish for you, making the styles more individual than ever. In recognition of this decree the milliners have put forth unusual exertions, if that be possible, to increase the number of shapes for winter hats.

It is a flattering testimony to their good sense and regard for the fitness of things that very few extravagant shapes are seen. Experience has proved these designs an extravagance, because so few women take them up, consequently they are made at a loss to the manufacturers. The shapes now displayed in the smart shops are attractive without exception and it is an easy matter for any style fast to suit.

The round sailor shapes, with curved brim are among the prettiest fashions in hats and probably lead themselves to a greater variety of trimming than any other design. They are also generally becoming without affording a loophole to the cheaper hat shops which too frequently spoil a good fashion by overloading it.

Many of the sailor shapes are made of fine felt, closely stitched on both crown and brim, the stitching being employed to make them hold their shape, assisted by the customary wiring about the edge of the brim. They are never more effective than when decorated with flowers. This trimming also rings in a variety of charming color schemes which one cannot always find in feathered adornments, especially if too much of the dress allowance cannot be set apart for head gear.

An attractive design is shown in one of the shops in dark blue French felt, closely stitched. The crown is round and rather low, built out with a wreath of daisy blue forget-me-nots combined with small pink geranium buds. The flowers are very thick and massed around the upper edge of the crown in rich effect, terminating at the left side under a bow of sapphire blue ribbon velvet.

The smaller flowers make richer trimmings, many milliners claim and this year are shown in a larger variety of colorings. Yet, however, the woman who prefers roses and blooms more generously endorsed by Nature in regard to size, will find much to admire in the exquisite bunches of crushed roses shading from palest pink in the center to deep red at the outer petals, or varying shades of yellow, green and purple. Pure white silk roses with richly shaded autumn leaves make a rich trimming for almost any hat in grey, blue, green, red or brown. This decoration is usually finished with a bow of velvet matching the hat, arranged under the brim with or without buckles or decorative buttons.

A pretty shape is shown in a grey braided chenille and might be called a Marquis turban were it not finished with the plaited ruffle, which distinguishes the Charlotte Corday designs. The ruffles, however, are very narrow and held in closely so as not to increase the width of the brim. The hat is pointed at the front, then indented so that the sides and back extend again in points, but more rounded than that at the front. Its only trimming is a pompon of grey ostrich feathers secured with a handsome steel buckle.

Red and the bright, though subdued shades of blue, green and purple are as popular as any tints for the autumn hat. A stunning red toque exhibited with a tailored costume in the same shade is trimmed with autumn leaves at the top of the crown and the brim on the right side and at the back. At the left there is a spray of red flowers, from which extending down the left side and back is a dash of brighter red tulle. The tulle is so closely shirred that it gives the effect, at first glance, of a red bird's breast or wing. Chiffon figures prominently in the trimming of hats, of course, but in the hats so far shown, tulle seems to be quite as popular, while it is not quite as expensive.

DOCTORS ENDORSE HERPICIDE.

Because Its Formula Is Submitted to Them.

Alexander McMillan, M. D., a prominent physician of Lansing, Mich., writes: "O three cases I have tested Herpicide for Dandruff and the result has been all that could be desired."

Herpicide is made upon an entirely new principle, that is, that dandruff and falling hair are caused from a microbe that infests the hair bulb, and by destroying the microbe one's hair is bound to grow luxuriantly. Herpicide is the only hair remedy that claims to, and really does, destroy the dandruff germs.

HERE IS AN IDEA OF A WESTERN GROWTH

How Denver Keeps Itself Clean And Neat And Helps Boost Its Prospects.

So much has been said regarding the boosting of Janesville, the whole city is on the alert for something to bring it into exceptional prominence. Here is an idea for the Mayor or any common council to work on. Establish an annual cleaning up day. Make it a holiday and see that every nook and cranny of this city are as clean as brooms and shovels can make them. The idea comes from the west with the grass hoppers and the Jack rabbits and other kindred. The following clipping shows how they do such things out in Denver, and if it is good enough for Denver, it ought to be a fine thing for Janesville which was a village before Denver was ever thought of.

The Mayor of Denver, Colorado, has decided each year to set a day for the "cleaning up" of his city. The results this year were marvelous.

The city set an example by thoroughly cleaning all downtown business streets and alleys, painting all of the poles used in its fire and police system, placing new and improved refuse cans at downtown street and alley crossings, and erecting a number of banded iron drinking fountains in the business section. Hundreds of property owners repainted and repaired their buildings, the work which could not be finished on Saturday being continued during the week. Lawns in all parts of the city were cleaned, shade trees trimmed and flower beds set out. Weeds were cut on dozens of vacant lots and sidewalks were repaired everywhere.

The city was transformed in a day and there is every indication that it will be kept so. Prizes will be offered for the most attractive downtown store front, for the finest flower garden, for the best kept lawn, for the cleanest vacant lot and for the most beautiful block, and the agitation will be continued until Denver becomes the cleanest city in the United States. Here are some of Mayor Speer's suggestions, issued in the form of an official proclamation to the people:

"If your store front, residence or fence is dingy, order it painted."

"If your awning is old, torn or faded, get a new one."

"If your sidewalk, gate or fence needs repairing, fix it."

"If your advertising sign is old or faded, take it down and paint it."

"Resolve never to throw paper in the streets."

"Take all candlelans out of your lawn—they spoil its beauty."

"Destroy the young weeds that are starting on your property and on your neighbor's property."

"Burn all the rubbish possible—allow no one to throw it on street, alleys or vacant lots."

"Promise not to spit on the sidewalk."

"Organize a block improvement society, and allow no weeds to grow on sidewalk area or vacant property in your block."

"Ask your milkman, groceryman and expressman to have their wagons painted."

"Regardless of the size of your house make your lawn the finest."

"Illuminate the front of your store in the business section."

"Every effort put forth or dollar spent to improve our city's appearance will be returned two-fold."

FIRE ALARM SENT IN JUST AFTER BELL RANG FOR NOON

Small Blaze in Junk Dealers' Apartments on Jackson Street While Occupants Were Away.

Just as the bell at the West Side Fire Station had completed sounding the twelve rings for noon today a fire alarm was sent in from box fifty-one at the corner of Milwaukee and Jackson streets. The fire was a small blaze in the rear of the wooden structure on South Jackson street, just back of the building occupied by the McCue & Buss west side pharmacy. The apartments are occupied by M. Jacobson and J. Violette, junk-dealers, and the flames originated when they were away eating dinner. The fire was extinguished with chemicals. The source is unknown.

Application for a charter has been made by the Pennsylvania Steel Tie Company. The incorporators include Frederick Howden, W. W. Meehling and Jacob Smith. The plan is to erect a steel tie plant near Pittsburg.

The Michigan Central Railway Company has had filed in the United States Supreme Court the record of the case of the Michigan Central vs. Perry P. Powers, auditor general of the State of Michigan. The case is one of twenty-six of a similar character which will be taken by the railroad of Michigan to this court on appeal from the decision of the Circuit Court for the eastern district of Michigan, the latter sustaining the constitutionality of the State law of 1901, which provides for the levying of taxes on the basis of a cash valuation.

Many thousand freight cars not of recent pattern will be reduced to junk or sold by the Pennsylvania Railroad because they are not of sufficient capacity, or for other reasons are not suited to the needs of the system. They will be replaced by cars of modern design and steel construction. Curious as it may appear at first thought, the decision to destroy or dispose of these cars is of a constructive, rather than a destructive character. The steel cars that will take their places are much heavier, more durable, of greater capacity and in every way more desirable.

GRIDIRON CONTEST HERE ON SATURDAY

Evansville High School Eleven To Meet Locals At Athletic Park.

At Athletic park Saturday afternoon the first game of the high school football to be played this season in Janesville will occur. The visitors in Janesville will be the Evansville institution and though the occasion will be Janesville's first, the regular line-up, victory is expected. The contest is not for the purpose of gaining laurels, but to try out the candidates on the practice field. Last evening that every man would be given a chance to show his worth in the game. There are twenty-five men in the eleven and the selection of the first team and substitutes depends largely on the showings each individual makes Saturday. A second team will be organized this year and it is hoped to secure games for them with Milton, Broadhead, Edgerton and other schools in nearby small towns.

SHALL HE BUY COAL?
From all appearances Lieutenant-Governor Davidson is just as much at sea over the political situation in the state as are the majority of the voters of the state. Governor La Follette has not yet signified whether he is going to Washington or not. Mr. Davidson would like to know because if he is not he would like to order his winter supply of coal. If La Follette does go, he does not care because then the state would have to pay for the supply and the executive mansion could be as warm as he desired. Merely a matter of a few dollars the public will say but to the average householder, important. Coal or no coal?
THE INTERURBAN.
Milwaukee men who claim they know just what is what in the financial world announce that the Standard Oil trust have purchased the Rockford-Beloit and Janesville interurban just so as to find use for their surplus capital. They hint that Rockefeller and his "talented" money are about to invade Wisconsin. It is one thing certain whether Rockefeller's money is tainted or not, if he will build that extension to Madison it will look all right to his Janesville friends.

THOSE TROLLEY POLES.
Madison has been having a great "to do" over the trolley poles about the capital park. The Governor said they should not be placed within the limits of the states' private eleven foot strip; the council said they should and the traction company managed to place all but a few before the state administration woke up. Then came threats of militia with loaded rifles guarding the sacred eleven foot strip and the traction company desisted. Then came the courts and the compromise and the poles will be placed. The Governor, however, played his part and showed his authority and the work was delayed at least thirty days.
Beloit and Evansville are unduly indignant over the desire on the part of Janesville to have a county fair. Beloit takes every opportunity to knock anything Janesville proposes anyway, so it is not surprising they should become jealous of the plan to hold a county fair that represented the whole county.

No doubt the men in the yacht sighted off Tangier were on their way to establish an "empire" in the Sahara. Anyone wanting to go to the heart of the Sahara naturally would use a yacht.

PRESS COMMENT.
Milwaukee Journal: Some folks are of the opinion that Governor La Follette is still the greatest actor in the family.
Chicago Record-Herald: The man who started the "How old is Ann?" puzzle, is now editing a New York comic weekly. There still seems to be such a thing as poetic justice.
Madison Journal: If Baraboo does not soon raise the sum necessary to sustain its brass band we shall give the amount ourselves. We are tired of seeing the call in the papers.
Superior Telegram: The Buffalo newspapers have discovered another fact in favor of the healthfulness of sleeping in the open air at night—they claim that Buffalo's policemen are exceedingly healthy—no death rate at all.
Milwaukee Sentinel: If testimony by William Murphy against Charles E. Pfister would have been worth $7,000, it will be a difficult matter to show that his testimony against other "big fish" does not furnish grounds for indictments.
El Paso Herald: "Undelivered assets" is proposed as a name for some of the results of the financial hankypank the insurance companies have been indulging in. They are likely undelivered for the reason that the companies never got them.
Green Bay Gazette: There can be no doubt but that the insurance companies paid large sums to the republican campaign committee, but the question of primary importance is "what did they get for it?"
Chicago Inter-Ocean: The President is assured a hearty reception throughout the length and breadth of Dixie. Everywhere the arrangements for his entertainment are being carried out on an extensive scale. All of which goes to show that he did not, after all, make very much of a mistake in treating Booker Washington as a man.
Eau Claire Leader: Where a short time ago it looked as though the young giant Lennox from the North was to be the coming man and more recently the sun-kissed silver-tongued but flighty McGillivray was the real thing, truly one, it now looks as though it might be the cold, calm and careful Connor. A little later perhaps the placid Davidson will come to the home plate for a home run.
Rockford Register-Gazette: The faculty of Beloit college has suspended the rule which has prevailed at Beloit since the founding of the school requiring students to attend church services Sunday mornings. President Eaton said it was the hope of the faculty that students would be regular in attendance at church, but there was no longer a desire to enforce religious observance.

Took Parson Wilder's Tip.
Madison Journal: The young man who writes the comic column of the Sentinel has evidently been made thoughtful. It is well. The newspaper not only reflects life as it is, but, if given a tilt, teaches it to the youth as it ought to be. It to get merry drunk is the part of a man, as indicated with all the cleverness of the leading paper of the state, there will be here and there a young man who thinks sobriety stupid and unworthy his estate. Ideals is a hazy word but not without a deal of meaning.
Chautauqua Mountebanks.
Chicago Chronicle: One of the most dismal of current statements is the declaration of Dr. MacArthur that the Chautauquas will control the next presidential election. As the Chautauquas have developed a strong predilection for all the spectacular figures in politics, we may expect that their presidential choice will be somebody like Sam Small or Senator Tillman. This recent tendency of the Chautauquas toward the sensational is, by the way, a discouraging symptom. It indicates that people who have hitherto been classed as conservative are running after mountebanks and mountebankisms.
War On The Corner Loafer.
Cleveland Leader: Every woman and every decent man in the city rejoices that the police seem determined to suppress the corner loafer. Sunday evening twenty eight specimens of this rowdy type were arrested and the police say they will get more of them. The corner loafer is the cheapest, most cowardly and most despicable of the minor law-breakers. The gang on the corner is the school of the criminal. The stop from rowdiness to stealing is a short one and once embarked in that follows it until it leads him into either the workhouse or the penitentiary. Unceasing vigilance by the police is the only way to rid the city of these pests.
Breaking the News Gently.
Exchange: To illustrate a point of statecraft: Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the English statesman, has been telling his constituents a story of a small boy who went to his mamma and asked her to lend him a pencil. "But," said the mother, "I left a pen and ink for you to do your lessons with on the nursery table. Why don't you use that instead of a pencil?" "Because," hesitated for a moment, "Don't you think mamma," he said at length, "that the 'Times' is a very useful paper?" "Of course," answered mamma; "but what?" "Well, you see," the little lad explained, "I want a pencil to write to the editor and ask him what'll take ink stains out of a carpet."

Do Women Want to Vote?
Chicago Record-Herald: Thinkers like Spencer and Lecky opposed woman suffrage on the ground that in politics women would expect impossible social and moral reforms and would sacrifice stern justice to sentiment and sympathy. Mr. Cleveland seems to think that women are not even entitled to credit for "whole-some legislation" and that they are not moral enough for practical politics. Neither position is impressively sound, but the latter does not even rest on the apparent foundation of such superficial facts as have been marshaled by adherents of the former in their dread of "paternalism" and "benevolence" in legislation. For this country the practical question of the present is: "Do the women themselves want the suffrage?" With that determined it would make very little difference what philosophers and ex-presidents have thought on the subject of their qualifications.
Not To Be Trifled With.
Milwaukee Free Press: Col. Fred Bennett of Joliet believes in the principle of millions for defense but nothing for tribute. He recently took his daughter to Smith College, the famous Northampton, Mass., school for girls, and found that he, being an outsider, must pay an annual fee of $5 for the use of the college library. The college was indignant and made the colonel an offer of one million dollars to move its bags and its baggage to his Illinois town. The colonel is not a millionaire himself, but he is reputed to have millions of influence with the men of money in Joliet. It was through his efforts that a big overal factory was recently induced to move there from the east. The colonel is a Spanish war veteran, and a man not to be trifled with.

In "Spikadee" Land.
Chicago Tribune: "Spikadee" is the name by which the natives are known to people there, so named because when they were asked any questions their invariable reply was, "No spika de Englis." Porto Rican is their proper name. There is much trouble in "Spikadee" land in reconciling the natives to American rule and American ways, and there are several good reasons for this trouble. Mr. Alden A. Knipe states one of them in an article in the October issue of Appleton's Booklover's Magazine. The Porto Rican is the outcome of four centuries' commingling of three races, Spanish, negro, and Carib, and apparently he unites the disagreeable qualities of all three. He lives a hard to mouth existence, satisfied at the wild fruits that grow about his shack in profusion. His laziness is often carried to a point where it becomes ridiculous. "When a United States steamer was sent from the United States during the absolutely desperate conditions that existed for a time after the hurricanes, all the perishable foodstuffs were ruined because the natives were too indifferent to unload the ship."

Why Women Pad.
Oshkosh Northwestern: The question of why women pad has long been a conundrum to most of the community. Of course it is readily understood that the ostensible purpose of such doctos is merely to make up deficiencies that may have been neglected by nature, although it is open to question whether nature ever intended to produce such "forms" as have been exhibited as a result of the dressmaker's art. But lack of this there has always been a deep suspicion that the real reason for practice of this kind was a secret desire on the part of the women to fool the men, and at least to keep them mystified and guessing as to how much was real and how much fictitious. Of course it was not to be expected that the women would give away their own secret and explain the why of this custom, even if they knew it. Their usual excuse is that pads are a necessity for making their gowns fit properly, and of course the men have been compelled to let it go at this, although they may have been inclined to "wink the other eye." In the city of Chicago, however, during the past week, a valuable hint was given to solve the problem of why women pad. It occurred in one of so-called demonstrations in connection with the National Dressmaker's Association, and was given in a heart to heart talk indulged in by one of the demonstrators, a certain Mme. Moreau. Men, she said, wanted women to have fine figures, and, as most women lived for the admiration of men, they should try and reach their ideal, even if they had to carry around twenty-pound pads of feathers, sawdust, and hair to do it. And in doing this, Mme. Moreau declared they were not a bit more deceitful than the average man, who, she claimed, wears all kinds of contrivances to give him shoulders, shapely limbs, hips and a "chesty" appearance.
He Waited No Longer.
"You may refuse me now," said the persistent sailor, "but I can wait. All things come to him who waits."
"Yes," replied the dear girl, "and I guess the first thing will be father; I hear him on the stairs."

Family Expenses Are Higher This Fall Than Ever Before.

Those upon whom these added burdens fall, will see the point when mention is made of the fact that something like one-half of the family dental expense, can be saved this year by employing Dr. Richards, our Janesville Dentist. He has held out against the local Dental Combine which would demand his raising his prices about one-half. He has proven by 5 years' practice in this city that his work is equal in all respects to that of any competitor, while his fees are within the reach of the people.

REV. TIPPETT IS TO RETURN HERE

METHODIST CONFERENCE RETURNS JANESVILLE PASTOR.

LIVELY SHAKEUP OTHERWISE

Wisconsin Conference Ends Its Work At Wausau By Appointment of The Pastors.

Rev. J. H. Tippet is to return to Janesville for another year. This is the decision of the Wisconsin conference of the Methodist church at their session just closed in Wausau. Mr. Tippet's return was requested by the Central Church of this city and Mr. Tippet enters upon his fourth year of pastorate in Janesville. The conference made several radical transfers of the clergy. The work of the conference was most successful and the changes in the pastorate, which most particularly affect Milwaukee, are looked upon with approval.

Asks Senate to Expel Reed Smoot

Following the lead of the Madison conference, this conference adopted resolutions calling upon the United States senate to expel Reed Smoot and endorsing the movement for a constitutional amendment prohibiting polygamy in America. Eight thousand dollars was appropriated for the charges of the conference, of which $2,000 is for evangelical work, $400 to be spent for the Watertown mission. The Rev. A. J. Benjamin of Oshkosh was granted a year's leave of absence and the Rev. Dr. C. John was placed on the supernumerary list at his own request. Mr. Benjamin's magazine, the Wisconsin Christian Advocate, was endorsed after warm debate which it developed that its opponents were under the impression that it was to be issued as a weekly publication. When it was explained that this impression was erroneous, and that it would not come into competition with the established organ of the conference, objections were withdrawn.

Some of the Changes

Rev. C. C. Hulbert, the blind preacher who was educated at the State School, is now a member of the conference and is assigned to Fox Lake. The Rev. Sabina Halsey, for six years at Fond du Lac, goes to Oak Lake. The following is the assignment for the Janesville district: Janesville District.

Presiding elder, E. S. McChesney; Allen's Grove and Fairfield, H. K. R. Darien, to be supplied; Beloit, R. W. Bosworth; Clinton, C. J. Bailey; Delavan, G. W. White; East Troy and German Settlement, William Dawson; Edgerton, F. C. Richardson; Elkhorn and Bethel, J. T. Murrish; Evansville, James Churn; Footville, A. M. Ivey; Port Atkinson and Koshkonong, J. Reynolds; Heart Prairie, Lagrange and Troy Center, J. C. Jett; Hebron and Rome, Thomas Sharpe; Janesville, J. H. Tippet; Jefferson, L. W. Nixon; Lake Geneva, C. M. Starkweather; Lake Mills and Milford, C. R. Montague; Lyons, Spring Prairie and Springfield, G. K. Macine; Milton and Lima, Anton Hatlestad; Milton Junction and Otter Creek, Thomas North; Orfordville and Plymouth, C. W. Boag; Palmyra and Little Prairie, W. Robertson; Palmyra circuit, C. I. Andrews; Richmond, B. D. Allen; Sharon, A. Porter; Shople, S. Lugg; Stoughton, E. J. Symons; Watertown, M. L. Eversy; Whitewater, J. J. Lugg.

EATS POISON BERRY AND DIED IN AGONY

Little Albert Sprackles of Afton Dies As Result of His Act.

Nightshade or some other deadly plant which he had eaten along the road is supposed to have caused the death of Albert Sprackles, the 3 1/2-year-old son of Martin Sprackles of the vicinity of Afton Saturday. The child frequently played along the highway and it is supposed that he was attracted by the berries of the balladonna plant and eating them died from the narcotic effect of the poison. The funeral was held Monday.

JEFFERSON FAIR IS MAGNET TOMORROW

Good Sized Delegation From Janesville Will Probably See Chas. Schaller's Pacer In 2:40 Class.

"Charley Howe," the fast little pacer owned by Charles Schaller of this city, is entered in the 2:40 event at the Jefferson fair tomorrow and a number from Janesville expect to witness this race and the other good ones that are scheduled. The horse has been giving a good account of himself lately and would have won first money at Madison, it is believed, had he been handled properly. Owing to the fact that his mark has been lowered of late, he will have to go with faster company next year.

BIG AUDIENCE FOR "THE HONEY BOY"

Little Comedian George Evans Made Big Hit At The Myers Theatre Last Evening.

Prior to the appearance of "The Runaways" her last evening there was a certain suspicion prevalent that the comedian, George Evans, to a certain extent unknown here, was trading on the reputation of the old-time minstrel Charles Evans who is now appearing in "The Filler" in Chicago. Some even challenged his right to "The Honey Boy" title. All this transpired before they saw the show.

Afterwards everybody conceded any title the little comedian might want to assume without question. He could have had the key and keyhole of the city by a popular vote. Everything he said and did so tickled the risibilities of his audience that they were positively afraid to look serious while he sang for fear he would catch them unawares with some outrageous sally and follow it up swiftly with some peppery banter on dull-wit. So they smiled continuously and roared between times at this little apple-faced dynamo and when he commenced weaving in the local hits which he had assembled between the hours of 6:30 and 7:30 p. m.—the company did not arrive until after the supper hour—the listeners did most everything but toss their hats in the air and it is possible that this demonstration was only missed by a narrow margin. And that voice—ranging from falsetto to a deep basso, and clear as a bell—and those facial expressions, those ridiculous postures—Evans never let his part drag for a second.

Without him it is hard to imagine what sort of entertainment "The Runaways" would afford. The music is tuneful and the lines written by the authors are passable but hardly clever. Most of the situations owe their effectiveness to the fact that Evans is in them. Charles Dow is an excellent foil for him as "Dr. Fleecem" and J. M. Bauman plays a pleasing role as "Dave," the race-track man. Franklyn Wallace is a casual sort of a naval officer-lover and W. T. Baumann as "Gen. Hardback" succeeds in being amusing at times. The "tree of truth" is good for several laughs and the number "Down in the Old Town Hall," interpolated with a minstrel performance and a St. Patrick's Day celebration, makes a big hit. Evans' "A Kiss for Each Day in the Week" furnishes an opportunity for much merriment and he makes the most of it. The scenery is very good, the costumes acceptable, the chorus not as comely as might be wished. "The Runaways" played to a big audience.

John Dietz Still Holds The Cameron Dam And Worries Little Over Logging Company's Threats

For a month or more no armed men have threatened to molest John Dietz and he is holding his own peacefully at the Cameron dam on the Thornapple. According to his brother who was in Ladysmith Sunday the only word that has come from the logging company recently is in the form of a suggestion that the victor of the Cameron dam would do better to settle for a small amount than to be circumvented by the company's hauling the logs around the dam. This proposition to beat John F. Dietz out of his tollage is regarded as impossible by his brother who says that without the use of the dam the Thornapple has not sufficient volume of water for nearly twenty miles to float the logs. There are about 18,000,000 feet of them above the dam and these would have to be gathered up and hauled to the Flambeau river, twelve miles to the south. The damage to the logs is estimated at from $100,000 to $150,000. George Appleby of this city who is familiar with the situation there says that he believes this estimate to be correct. The logging company has entertained a plan to build a rough electric tramway to get the logs out, the large area of swamp land in that locality makes the proposition hardly feasible. Mr. Appleby believes that Dietz made a great mistake in not accepting the company's flat offer of $10,000 for his 100 acres for which he paid something like $120 an acre. Dietz wanted twice that amount and something like ten cents toll on each log. But the Janesville man agrees with Dietz's brother that there is little likelihood of the company's settling the logs out above the dam, in the summer time at least. The logs are an exceptionally fine cut of sort of the finest timber available in the state, according to Mr. Appleby.

THE YOKE

Copyright, 1904, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

"So? Thou art ready for the care of the physicians by this, then, O my sister."

"I am not thy sister."

"What? Hast quarreled with the gentle Seti?"

"Rameses, do not mock me. Seti does not even stir my pulses. He could not rob me of my peace."

"What temperate love! Mine makes my temples crack and fills mine hours with sweet distress."

Ta-user looked at him for a moment, then, raising her hands, caught the folds of his robe over his breast.

"Rameses, how far wilt thou go in this trifling with the Lady Masanath?"

"To the marrying priests." Without looking at her he loosened her hands, swung them idly and let them go.

"Stay, Rameses," she urged, catching at his robes once more. "I would have thee know something. But am I to tell thee in words what I would have thee know? Surely I have not let slip a single chance to show thee or token. Art thou stubborn or blind that thou dost not pity me and spare me the arrow?"

She dropped before him.

Rameses looked down at her upturned face without a softening line, on his pallid countenance.

"Ta-user," he said deliberately, "had I been maimed and outwitted I should have known thine intent. I marvel that thou couldst think I had not seen. Now, hast thou not guessed my mind by this? Have I not been sufficiently explicit? Must I, too, lay bare my heart in words?"

She did not speak for a moment; then she said eagerly:

"Let not thy jealousy trouble thee concerning Seti—he is naught to me—I love him not—a boy, no more."

"Seti!" he exclaimed contemptuously. "I have no feeling against Seti save for his unfaithfulness to the little child who loves him, whose heart thou hast most deliberately broken."

"Not so," she declared vehemently. "I cannot help the boy's attachment to me. She is a child, as thou hast said, and is easily comforted. Not so with maturer hearts like mine."

She put her arms about his neck and, flinging her head back, gazed at him with a heavy eye.

She was not dealing with Seti or Siptah, or any other whom she had bewitched. There was no spell in the topaz eyes for Rameses. If her sorcery affected him at all it was no more than a cursory interest in her next move.

"The night is too short to recount my reasons," he replied calmly as he put her arms away. "But I might point out the snarling cur Siptah for one and a few other comely lords of Egypt."

You Must Sleep.

If you cannot, it is due to an irritated or congested state of the brain, which will soon develop into nervous prostration. Nature demands sleep, and it is as important as food; it is a part of her building and sustaining process. This period of unconsciousness relaxes the mental and physical strain, and allows nature to restore exhausted vitality.

Dr. Miles' Nervine brings refreshing sleep, because it soothes the irritation and removes the congestion.

It is also a nerve builder; it nourishes and strengthens every nerve in your body, and creates energy in all the organs. Nothing will give strength and vitality as surely and quickly as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"During the past winter I had two attacks of LaGrippe which left me very weak, and in bad condition. I was so nervous I could not sleep. My wife after trying different remedies, went for a doctor. The doctor was out, and a neighbor recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and she brought home a bottle. I had not slept for some time, and had terrible pains in my head. After taking a few doses of Nervine the pain was not so severe, and I slept. I am now taking the second bottle, and am very much improved."

own undoing, being blind. Much is at stake on thy love for the prince. Awake, Masanath! Thou dost love him; thou wilt wed him—and it shall go well with all others whom thou lovest."

"Wouldst use me for a price, my father—wouldst barter thy daughter for something?" she asked in a tone low with apprehension.

"Ah, what elegant word!" he chid. "Thou dost mislead my purpose. Look, my daughter. Have I not served thee with hand and heart all thy life, asking nothing, sacrificing much? I, for one, have a debt against thee, and thou canst pay it in thy marriage to Rameses. Dost thou not love me enough to make me secure with the prince and so secure in mine advisership to the king?"

"Shall I hold thee in thy position at the expense of Egypt's peace if not at the expense of the dynasty?" Masanath cried.

"By the heaven bearing shoulders of Buto," he responded laughingly, "thou dost put a high estimate on the results of thine acts! Add thereto if not at the expense of the Pantheon and thou shalt have all heaven and earth at thy mercy."

"Nay, my father, hear me! Thou knowest Ta-user!"

"Oh, ay, I know Ta-user—all Egypt knows her. Her fangs are drawn, daughter."

"Hear me, father. Last night after Rameses—after he—after he left me he met Ta-user, and the talk between them was of such nature that she knelt to him, and he flung her off. They were between me and mine apartments, and I could not but know of it. When he left her she made such threats that it were treason for me to give them voice again. What she asked of him I surmise. It could not have been other than a prayer to him to fulfill what was expected of him concerning her. Thou knowest the breach between the Pharaoh and his brother, Anon-mes, is but feebly bridged till Rameses shall heal the wound in marriage with Ta-user. His failure, added to the vehement contempt he displayed for her last night, shall make that breach ten times as deep and ever receding, so there can be no healing of it."

Har-hat flung his head back and laughed heartily.

"Thou timid child, frightened with the ravings of a discarded wanton! She and her following of church can do nothing against the son of Ptah. The moles in the necropolis are richer than they. None of loyal Egypt will espouse their cause, and without money how shall they get them mercenaries? Nay, why vex thee with matters of state? All that is required of thee is thy heart for Rameses, no more."

"Judge not for Rameses, I pray thee," she insisted, coming near him. "Knowing that I love him not, perchance he might be gentler with Ta-user, did he see his peril!"

Again Har-hat laughed.

"I am not blind, O little reluctant," he said. "I know the secret spring of thy concern for Egypt—for Ta-user—for Rameses. I have not told thee all the stake upon thy love for the prince. Does it not seem that since a maiden will not love one winsome man there must be another already installed in her heart? But have a care lest it bring disaster upon him whom thou hast put in jeopardy of the fierce power of the prince."

Masanath's eyes widened with terror. The fan bearer continued, "I have but to mention the name of Hotey."

She clutched at her heart.

"Nay, bring no disaster on the head of the noble Hotey," she begged. "It is—I—there is naught between us."

"It is even as I had thought. I shall tell Rameses and send him to thee," he said, moving away.

With a bound she was between him and the door.

"If he ask, tell him there is naught between me and the royal scribe, but send him not hither," she commanded, with vehemence.

"If thou art rebellious, Masanath, I must chasten thee."

"Hast won the sanction of the Pharaoh for this betrothal?" she demanded.

"Menephthah's will is clay in my hands," he replied contemptuously.

"Vex me further and I shall tell him that."

The pair gazed at each other, breathless with temper.

"Wilt thou wed Rameses?" he demanded.

"So thou wilt avoid the name of Hotey in the presence of Rameses and wilt shield him as if his safety were to bring thee gain," she replied, thrusting skillfully. "I will wed the prince in one year. Furthermore, in that time I shall be free to go where I please and to be vexed with the sight of thee or that royal monster no more than is my desire. Say, wilt thou accept?"

"Have it thy way, then, vixen," he exclaimed, "but remember I look a heavy hand above thy head and Hotey's!"

He strode out of her presence, and when she was sure he was gone she fell on her face and wept miserably.

Straight Plays In Football

They Are Directly Opposed to Tricks and Are of Greatest Value—Descriptions and Useful Hints—Assist Man Carrying the Ball.

The principal feature of a winning football team's work is straight football. Straight plays are directly opposed to trick plays.

Straight football supplies the means of most of the steady gains in advancing the ball. By knowledge and illustration of it is a team's strength best gauged.

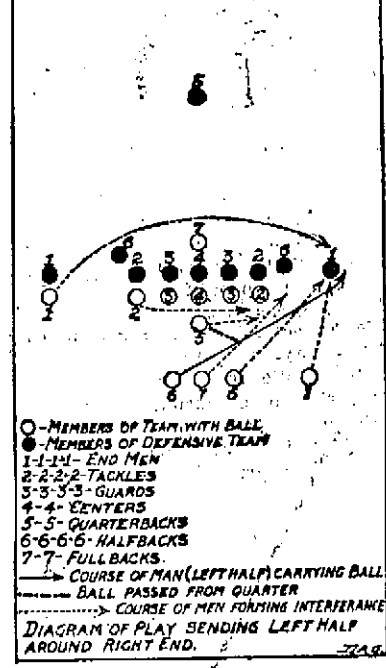

Following are the leading plays included in straight football.

Halfback Plays.—Right halfback through between left guard and tackle, left tackle and end, around left end and through right (his own) tackle; left halfback through the same openings in the opposite side of the line; halves are at times sent through between center and the guards, but usually the fullback, because of his greater weight, expects these "bucking the center" plays.

end duplicates these plays on the opposite side of the line.

The foregoing are the fundamental plays of Rugby football for the team in possession of the ball. The man who carries the ball in each play must have the assistance of every man possible to be brought directly into the play. He must have interferers (men who ward off attackers) as well as men who push or pull him forward into the enemy's territory.

When, for instance, the left half goes around right end (see diagram), the fullback, right half, right tackle and right end must ward off the opposing left tackle, left end, left halfback and possibly the fullback, all of whom should endeavor to break up the interference and tackle and "down" the carrier of the ball. The same methods should prevail when the right half goes around left end.

When a man carries the ball around the ends or through tackle, interferers should go in advance of the runner. When a runner goes through center, and sometimes when aiming between guard and tackle, he should be the first man to hit the line. His assistants then throw their weight at his back to push him through.

In plays between guard and center the quarter should hand the ball directly to the runner, showing it close in the pit of the latter's stomach, so as to guard against fumbles. On an end or a tackle run the quarter should pass the ball through the air to the man who is to carry it in order to save time.

In end and tackle runs the runner does not approach close enough to the quarter to have the ball handed to him, unless the quarter consumes valuable moments in running to meet the man who is to carry the ball. In these runs the man receiving the ball from the quarter should carry it under one arm, the one on the outside or farthest from the attackers.

Faculty at State University Threatens to Suspend Sophomore Hazers.

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 26.—The faculty of the University of Illinois is investigating the hazing of freshmen by sophomores a few days ago and expulsions from the college are expected to follow. Edward Johnson, Oscar Anderson and Harry Phillips, three of the freshmen, were being forced by some of the sophomores to carry a ladder, when the proceedings were interrupted by the police. GOLD CERTIFICATE HAS BEEN ISSUED

The New Twenty Dollar Gold Certificate Is A Work of Art and Beauty.

The new $20 gold certificate issued last month has been received and is declared by Janesville bankers to be a great improvement over the old design. The bankers throughout the country are much pleased with the new note and say it is one of the hardest to counterfeit that has ever been issued. The execution of the engraving, as well as the design, is far better than that on the old issues. The other design, they say, was merely a patchwork of machine engraving, and the only piece of fine engraving in it, the portrait of Garfield, was not connected in any way with the rest of the note. It was without proper denominational counters, an important item in the handling of bank notes. The only such counter of sufficient prominence to be readily seen was the large "20" in the upper left-hand corner.

The new design has a portrait of Washington in the center, surrounded by an ornamental border with a background of intricate lathwork, displaying denominational counters so arranged that no matter how the certificate may be placed in a pile of bank notes the teller can readily determine its denomination.

The essential thing in designing bank notes is to make them as difficult as possible to counterfeit, and to accomplish this the underlying tint in yellow was used, and was so arranged as to produce the figures "20" at the top and the words "In Gold Coin" at the bottom, in apparently a deeper shade of yellow than the body of the note.

When it is determined to issue a new note or certificate a rough draft of the proposed design is submitted to the treasurer, his tellers, secret service officials and all others who have any knowledge or interest in the matter. This draft is returned to the bureau with the suggestions of all these persons, and a new draft embodying them is again submitted. When perfected, the design is finally passed upon by the secretary of the treasury.

The experiment of obtaining designs of notes from artists was made some years ago, but with disastrous results. While the execution was satisfactory, the banks made such vigorous objection to the designs that they had to be withdrawn before any considerable number were issued and new designs made after the old method had been made by some of the best artists in the country, but the bankers said that, while they were beautiful pictures, they were not suitable for bank notes.

ROBS A 4-YEAR-OLD CHILD OF 5 CENTS; FINE IS $75

Chicago Police Justice Deals Out Heavy Penalty to Man Who Took Pennies From Boy.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 26.—Justice Callahan in the South Chicago court fined a thief 1,500 times the amount of his theft. The defendant, Michael Worsmark, went to the sidewalk to serve out the fine.

He stole 5 cents according to a policeman, and Justice Callahan fined him $75. Worsmark, it was alleged, was intoxicated, when he met near his home the child of a neighbor. The boy, 4 years old, had five pennies in his chubby fist, and displayed them to Worsmark. The latter was thirsty and "broke." He seized the pennies and shuffled away.

The child ran after him screaming, and a policeman, who had seen Worsmark's action, intervened. He gave the child his money and took Worsmark to the station. When arraigned he pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct.

"What was he doing?" asked Justice Callahan.

"He took 5 cents from a baby," the officer replied.

"From a child? I guess $75 will be about right for him," the justice decided.

DEPOPULATING ENGLAND.

The Craze There for Extensive Game Preserves Is Driving Out the Farmers.

There has been for many years a tendency to increase the size of farms by throwing three or four into one and pulling down the superfluous buildings. Farmers and land owners alike promoted this disastrous policy, says the independent Review.

In the few years farmers competed wildly with each other for every vacant farm; it was easier to collect rent from one farmer than from three or four; but, above all, I think, in many places the growing love, not of "sport" in the old sense of the word, but of preservation of game on a huge scale, as an attraction to the squire's sporting friends, was the chief incentive to this truly unpatriotic procedure.

A large head of game is much more easily kept up when farms are large, farmers few, and cottages far apart, than when farms are small and habitations near together. Wealthy men can afford to let farms on very easy terms to tenants who will help to preserve the game and make no "fuss" about its ravages.

The only rural employment in which the number of those engaged has increased of late years is gamekeeping. In all others it has decreased largely. Very high rents are paid by rich men for a mansion with first-class shooting for the season. This often pays the owner much better than farms let to progressive and hard-working farmers would do.

So it comes about that covers are planted, cottages pulled down, land let go to gorse; and the heritage of the people becomes the playground of the rich.

SOMEWHAT OPEN QUESTION

The Chasm May Have Been Like Aunt Elizabeth, a Trifle Weary.

Ever since the time of the famous "traveled parson" stay-at-home folks have had their doubts at times about the desirability of having globe-trotters for friends and relatives, says the New York Times.

Old Miss Stanton, after sending her nephew Edward through college, next supplied him with funds for a year's travel abroad. On his return the young man was possessed by a praiseworthy zeal to entertain his venerable and generous aunt, as well as to make plain to her that he had profited by his adventures. Especially had he during his visit of a month at Miss Stanton's expatiated on the magnificence of Switzerland's scenery, until that lady found herself actually cherishing a grudge against the Alps.

"There I stood, Aunt Elizabeth," said the long-winded young man impressively, "there I stood, and beneath me that stupendous abyss was yawning!"

The long-suffering old lady broke in at this point:

"Edward," she said crisply, "are you prepared to say whether that abyss was yawning before you got there, or did it begin shortly afterward?"

HAS FEWER ANARCHISTS.

Public Feeling Has Driven Most of the Murderous Sort from Italy.

"The attempt on the life of the Dowager Queen Margherita has filled Italians with horror and indignation. Since the assassination of her husband, the unfortunate Humbert, the horror towards anarchists has been more intense every day, and public opinion is strong in its denunciation of that moral scourge."

Strange to say, and against the universal belief, there are probably fewer anarchists in Italy to-day than in any other country of the world. It is true that a majority of the anarchists are Italians, but, as a rule, they do not operate in their native land. The United States and Spain offer the anarchists a much better field than Italy, where the police has made a special and constant duty of the prosecution of anarchists.

Up to the time of President McKinley's assassination America was the greatest anarchist center of the world. Of late, however, the reds have pitched their camp in Barcelona and other cities of Spain, and it is there that plans are made and from there that orders are given.
